this book covers the fierce night naval battles fought between the us navy and the imperial japanese navy during late 1943 as the allies advanced slowly up the solomons islands toward the major japanese naval base at rabaul during this period several vicious actions were fought featuring the most modern destroyers of both navies throughout most of 1942 the imperial navy had held a marked edge and a key ingredient of these successes was their destroyer force which combined superior training and tactics with the most capable torpedo in the world even into 1943 mixed allied light cruiser destroyer forces were roughly handled by japanese destroyers after these battles the americans decided to stop chasing japanese destroyers with cruisers so the remainder of the battles in 1943 with one exception were classic destroyer duels this book explores the americans technical edge provided to them by radar and now added new more aggressive tactics the final result was the defeat of the imperial navy s finely trained destroyer force and the demonstration that the japanese were unable to stop the allies advance today autonomous robots are used in a rather limited range of applications such as exploration of inaccessible locations cleaning floors mowing lawns etc however ongoing hardware improvements and human fantasy steadily reveal new robotic applications of significantly higher sophistication for such applications the crucial bottleneck in the engineering process tends to shift from physical boundaries to controller generation as an attempt to automatize this process evolutionary robotics has successfully been used to generate robotic controllers of various types however a major challenge of the field remains the evolution of truly complex behavior furthermore automatically created controllers often lack analyzability which makes them useless for safety critical applications in this book a simple controller model based on finite state machines is proposed which allows a straightforward analysis of evolved behaviors to increase the model s evolvability a procedure is introduced which by adapting the genotype phenotype mapping at runtime efficiently traverses both the behavioral search space as well as recursively the search space of genotype phenotype mappings furthermore a data driven mathematical framework is proposed which can be used to calculate the expected success of evolution in complex environments
