this book comes from the internet browsing the i stumbled on philosophers cognitive scientists sociologists computer scientists even mathematicians saying original provocative things about mathematics and many of these people had probably never heard of each other so i have collected them here this way they can read each other's work i also bring back a few provocative oldies that deserve publicity the authors are philosophers mathematicians a cognitive scientist an anthropologist a computer scientist and a couple of sociologists among the mathematicians are two fields prize winners and two Steele prize winners none are historians i regret to say but there are two historically oriented articles these essays don't share any common program or ideology the standard for admission was nothing boring nothing trite nothing trivial every essay is challenging thought provoking and original back in the 1970s when i started writing about mathematics instead of just doing mathematics i had to complain about the literature philosophy of science was already well into its modern revival largely stimulated by the book of Thomas Kuhn but philosophy of mathematics still seemed to be mostly foundationist ping pong in the ancient style of Rudolf Carnap or Willard Van Ormon Quine the great exception was proofs and refutations by Imre Lakatos but that exciting book was still virtually unknown and unread by either mathematicians or philosophers i wrote an article entitled introducing Imre Lakatos in the mathematical intelligencer in 1978
