an antiracist theory of cleaning in making the world clean wasted lives wasted environment and racial capitalism françoise vergès examines the racial and gendered politics of wasting lands bodies and resources and the organized deprivation of clean water shelter and access to health services in other words the structural denial along racial lines of vital needs through 38 short sections she looks at the social relations that have made cleaning into drudgery and into a racialized gendered poorly paid job that is nevertheless necessary for any society to function she concludes with the proposition of a feminist decolonial antiracist anti patriarchal and anti capitalist politics of cleaning or simply put of decolonial cleaning to vergès the structural denial of the elemental needs of women of color sanitary pads access to water and privacy for basic washing and why these needs are considered insignificant and trivial shows how racism and class war are gendered by examining the banal the trivial and the elemental the author addresses cleaning as a necessity rather than the maintenance of a consumerist lifestyle a condition of basic care of the body and the mind that is considered with indifference by racial capitalism white environmentalism and even too often by humanitarian organizations she argues that by building life affirming institutions as ruth wilson gilmore advocates struggles against the whitening of cleaning create sites of freedom decolonial cleaning imagines cleaning as taking care of land humans plants animals and rivers not seeking to discipline them or transform them into commodities or objects of conservation but cleaning as a practice dedicated to sustaining the living world les recherches en psychologie mettent en lumière le paradoxe de la parentalité d un côté les parents témoignent d un profond sentiment d accomplissement en lien avec le fait d avoir eu des enfants de l autre leur niveau de bonheur diminue avec la naissance du premier enfant le manque de sommeil le sentiment de perdre sa liberté les responsabilités et les tâches quotidiennes sont à l origine d un état de fatigue qui rend la réalité parfois bien différente de l idéal dont ils avaient rêvé certains parents peuvent alors souffrir de ce que l on appelle désormais un burn out parental cet ouvrage se veut un décryptage du burn out parental visant à sortir du tabou et permettre une prise de conscience de tous ceux qui peuvent être concernés de près ou de loin par le phénomène les parents eux mêmes mais aussi les grands parents les enseignants les soignants etc grâce aux témoignages de parents touchés ce livre propose des éclairages issus de la vraie vie dans un deuxième temps mêlant leurs expériences d accompagnement de la gestion du stress et des émotions ou de la conciliation vie privée vie professionnelle les deux auteures proposent des pistes de solutions pour prévenir ou rebondir après pour changer et re trouver un équilibre de vie cet ouvrage est une chronologie qui relate la gestion de la crise sanitaire du covid 19 en france une pandémie venant troubler les calendriers militants politiques et bouleverser la vie de millions de personnes dans le monde la gestion de cette crise en france a déjà fait l objet de commissions d enquête mais aussi de nombreuses plaintes à l encontre des membres du gouvernement autant dire qu elle a fait couler beaucoup d encre vous y trouverez un chapitre dédié aux alertes mondiales sur le risque de pandémie un autre est dédié à la gestion des masques le tout rythmé par les prises de décisions gouvernementales associées aux critiques de la société civile a ce jour plus 100 millions de personnes sont touchées par cette maladie à l'échelle mondiale causant 2 3 millions de morts tout ceci aurait pu être limité voire évité a vous de juger cette chronologie est une archive pour la mémoire un constat pour la critique et une piste pour le monde d'après this book suggests a radical departure in approaching the mind body problem instead of trying to causally relate subjective experience to the functioning of the body it begins with the notion of the psychosomatic unity of the individual and looks for its conditions of possibility this text shows that what makes this unity possible is the generalized entanglement relation that connects a person's subjective experience with its body functioning in a specific way in addition to providing a significant contribution to the long standing philosophical debate about the nature of the mind body connection this change of perspective based on the concept of generalized entanglement allows for exploring a holistic approach to health it can for example explain the existence of body memory and leads to a better understanding of the genesis and evolution of internal diseases allowing for the development of mind body therapies this volume also provides new insights into mental disorders and sets the theoretical basis of self healing methods appealing to students researchers and professionals in the fields
