american art of the 1980s is as misunderstood as it is notorious critics of the time feared that market hype and self promotion threatened the integrity of art they lashed out at contemporary art questioning the validity of particular media and methods and dividing the art into opposing camps while controversies have since subsided critics still view art of the 1980s as a stylistic battlefield alison pearlman rejects this picture which is truer of the period's criticism than of its art pearlman reassesses the works and careers of six artists who became critics' biggest targets in each of three chapters she pairs two artists the critics viewed as emblematic of a given trend julian schnabel and david salle in association with neo expressionism jean michel basquiat and keith haring vis à vis graffiti art and peter halley and jeff koons in relation to simulationism pearlman shows how all these artists shared important but unrecognized influences and approaches a crucial and overwhelming inheritance of 1960s and 1970s conceptualism a warholian understanding of public identity and a deliberate and nuanced use of past styles and media through in depth discussions of works from haring's body paintings of grace jones to schnabel's movie basquiat pearlman demonstrates how these artists' interests exemplified a broader generational shift unrecognized by critics she sees this shift as starting not in the 1980s but in the mid 1970s when key developments in artistic style art world structures and consumer culture converged to radically alter the course of american art unpacking art of the 1980s offers an innovative approach to one of the most significant yet least understood episodes in twentieth century art the art of connection narrates the individual stories of artisans and traders of kenyan arts and crafts as they overcome the loss of physical access to roadside market space by turning to new digital technologies to make their businesses more mobile and integrated into the global economy bringing together the studies of globalization development art and communication the book illuminates the lived experiences of informal economies and shows how traders and small enterprises balance new risks with the mobility afforded by digital technologies an array of ethnic and generational politics have led to market burnings and witchcraft accusations as kenya's crafts industry struggles to adapt to its new connection to the global economy to mediate the resulting crisis of trust the fair trade sticker and other ngo aesthetics continue to successfully represent a transparent ethical and trusting relationship between buyer and producer dillon mahoney shows that by balancing revelation and obfuscation what is revealed and what is not kenyan art traders make their own roles as intermediaries and the exploitative realities of the global economy invisible art cinema occupies a space in the film landscape that is accorded a particular kind of value from films that claim the status of harsh realism to others which embody aspects of the tradition of modernism or the poetic art cinema encompasses a variety of work from across the globe but how is art cinema positioned in the film marketplace or by critics and in academic analysis exactly what kinds of cultural value are attributed to films of this type and how can this be explained this book offers a unique analysis of how such processes work including the broader cultural basis of the appeal of art cinema to particular audiences geoff king argues that there is no single definition of art cinema but a number of distinct and recurrent tendencies are identified at one end of the spectrum are films accorded the most heavyweight status offering the greatest challenges to viewers others mix aspects of art cinema with more accessible dimensions such as uses of popular genre frameworks and exploitation elements involving explicit sex and violence including case studies of key figures such as michael haneke pedro almodóvar and jean pierre and luc dardenne this is a crucial contribution to understanding both art cinema itself and the discourses through which its value is established public administration has evolved into an extraordinarily complex form of governance employing traditional bureaucracy quasi government public organizations and collaborative networks of nongovernmental organizations analyzing and improving government performance a matter of increasing concern to citizens elected officials and managers of the organizations themselves has in turn become a much more fraught undertaking understanding the new complexities calls for new research approaches the art of governance presents a fresh palette of research based on a new framework of governance that was first developed by coeditor laurence e lynn jr with carolyn j heinrich and carolyn j hill in their book improving governance a new logic for empirical research that book identified how the relationships among citizens legislatures executive and organizational structures and stakeholders interact in order to better diagnose and solve problems in public management this volume takes that relational concept into new realms of conceptualization and application as it links alternative institutional and administrative structures to program performance in different policy areas and levels of government collectively the contributors begin to paint a new picture of how management matters throughout the policy process they illuminate how at different levels of an organization leadership and management vary and explore both the significance of structural systems and the importance of alternative organizational forms for the implementation of public policies the art of governance shows that effective governance is much more complex than paint by number but if the variety of forms and models of governance are analyzed using advanced theories models methods and data important lessons can be applied that can lead us to more successful institutions
