Jann Tickner is ranked among the most influential scholars of international relations as one of the founders of the field of feminist international relations she is also among the most pioneering in many ways her academic career has traced the development of the feminist subfield of IR and it is no overstatement to say that the field today would look much different without her groundbreaking contributions a feminist voyage through international relations provides a compendium of Tickner's work as a feminist IR scholar from the late 1980s through today the book addresses the issue of methodology in feminist IR and the continuing challenge from traditional IR scholars that feminists don't perform legitimate scientific research Tickner introduces and contextualizes her previous writings with new essays that trace her intellectual development as a feminist scholar the chapters consider the introduction of women and gender into the conversation about IR as well as feminist methodological interventions and conversations with the IR mainstream the final section of the book includes some of Tickner's later writings on topics including race imperialism and religion she ends with thoughts on the present currents of feminist IR and its place within the wider discipline given the way that her career has mirrored the evolution of the subfield Tickner's book provides a methodological and epistemological story of feminist interventions in IR and a thoughtful reflection on where the field is headed in the future this book is about imperialism driven globalization its historic impact on Africa Latin America and Asia and over time the varied responses of the national political units and regional entities in these continents to the challenges of building countervailing power and laying foundations for independent development where genuine recovery and empowerment have emerged this has been the result not only of the pursuit of dignitist political and economic values that emphasize robust and sustained productivity geared toward uplifting the living standards and dignity of all the members of the national society but also of the creation of indigenous institutions whose relations with the external world are defined by equality rather than dependence and subordination Opoku Agyeman argues that dignification is the fundamentally necessary response to imperialism's inevitable afflictions of national racial humiliation it is the most crucial ingredient in the complex of motivations that propel formerly weak nation states and regional communities to rise up and defend the honor of their people as Mao Zedong told the world in 1949 ours will no longer be a nation subject to insult and humiliation we have stood up this study argues emphatically that it is a country's or region's developed or developing capabilities not its historic and continuing victimization or habitual dependence on charitable aid and other altruistic interventions from the international community that determines its success in escaping the scourge of powerlessness and underdevelopment it further maintains that a people who have been brought low through brutal dehumanizing imperialism cannot bypass the need for redemptive empowerment if they wish to regain honor and a proper place in the world finally it takes issue with joseph stiglitz jeffrey sachs and others like them whose moralistic critiques of the rapacity of imperialistic globalization carry the unfortunate implication that it is possible for a fair and just world social order to come out of incremental reforms of philanthropically motivated developed powerful countries in the structure and operations of global capitalism
