the right to vote in regular elections is a fundamental principle of democracy it constitutes a familiar civic ritual all over the world yet few participants are probably aware of its long and controversial history this was especially true of france the country chosen for this study which explores a wide range of issues surrounding voting in the context of a specific society casting a ballot does not come naturally and learning to vote is a lengthy process like the achievement of free and fair elections which are open to all adults an unprecedented experiment with mass voting for males was initiated in france in 1789 only for recurrent upheaval to ensure that the question of who could vote including women besides men and how they did so was frequently addressed and amended the entire electoral system was a constant source of partisan conflict popular protest and innovation throwing issues around the franchise electoral corruption spoiling papers and the problem of non voting into especially sharp focus this is the first book to explore these practices in a comprehensive fashion from the perspective of ordinary people beginning before the french revolution and concluding with the present day while according significant space to local as well as national elections a thematic analysis will assist an understanding of those countries where democracy remains in its infancy while also offering insight into widespread contemporary concern over declining turnout this book provides a new interpretation of the relationship between consumption drinking culture memory and cultural identity in an age of rapid political and economic change using france as a case study it explores the construction of a national drinking culture the myths symbols and practices surrounding it and then through a multisited ethnography of wine consumption demonstrates how that culture is in the process of being transformed wine drinking culture in france has traditionally been a source of pride for the french and in an age of concerns about the dangers of binge drinking a major cause of jealousy for the british wine drinking and the culture associated with it are for many an essential part of what it means to be french but they are also part of a national construction described by some as a national product or as a totem drink wine and its attendant cultures supposedly characterise frenchness in much the same way as being born in france fighting for liberty or speaking french yet this traditional picture is now being challenged by economic social and political forces that have transformed consumption patterns and led to the fragmentation of wine drinking culture the aim of this book is to provide an original account of the various causes of the long term decline in alcohol consumption and of the emergence of a new wine drinking culture since the 1970s and to analyse its relationship to national and regional identity
