honesty has always presented a problem for caroline manipulating situations and navigating around blunders and deceptions have become second nature to caroline she could justify every lie she has ever told and any truth she ever stretched honesty and revealing secrets would only keep her from moving forward with her life what good would it do anyhow even all of those bad financial decisions flawed relationships and questionable life choices seem like child s play compared to being arrested for the solicitation of her husband s murder and what follows could someone figure out caroline and what would happen if someone did this new book by the well known anthropologists jean and john l comaroff explores the global preoccupation with criminality in the early twenty first century a preoccupation strikingly disproportionate in most places and for most people to the risks posed by lawlessness to the conduct of everyday life ours in an epoch in which law making law breaking and law enforcement are ever more critical registers in which societies construct contest and confront truths about themselves an epoch in which criminology broadly defined has displaced sociology as the privileged means by which the social world knows itself they also argue that as the result of a tectonic shift in the triangulation of capital the state and governance the meanings attached to crime and with it the nature of policing have undergone significant change also that there has been a palpable muddying of the lines between legality and illegality between corruption and conventional business even between crime and policing which exist nowadays in ever greater hyphenated complicity thinking through crime and policing is therefore an excursion into the contemporary order of things or rather into the metaphysic of disorder that saturates the late modern world indeed has become its leitmotif it is also a meditation on sovereignty and citizenship on civility class and race on the law and its transgression on the political economy of representation speaking the truth about oneself is composed of lectures that acclaimed french philosopher michel foucault delivered in 1982 at the university of toronto as is characteristic of his later work he is concerned here with the care and cultivation of the self which becomes the central theme of the second and third volumes of his famous history of sexuality published in french in 1984 the month of his death and which are explored here in a striking and typically illuminating fashion throughout his career foucault had always been interested in the question of how constellations of knowledge and power produce and constitute subjects but in the last phase of his life he became especially interested not only in how subjects are constituted by outside forces but in how they constitute themselves in this lecture series and accompanying seminar we find foucault focused on antiquity starting with classical greece the early roman dynasties and concluding with fourth and fifth century christian monasticism foucault's claim is that in these periods we see the development of a new kind of act speaking the truth about oneself as the locus of a new form of subjectivity which he deemed important not just for historical reasons but also as something modernity could harness anew or adapt to its own purposes
