a masterful study by a preeminent scholar that situates cather as a visionary practitioner of literary modernism willa cather is often pegged as a regionalist a feminine and domestic writer or a social realist in cather among the moderns janis p stout firmly situates cather as a visionary practitioner of literary modernism something other scholars have hinted at but rarely affirmed stout presents cather on a large dramatic stage among a sizable cast of characters and

against a brightly lit social and historical backdrop invoking numerous figures and instances from the broad movement in the arts and culture that we call modernism early on stout addresses the matter of gender the term cross dresser has often been applied to cather but stout sees cather s identity as fractured or ambiguous a reading that links her firmly to early twentieth century modernity later chapters take up topics of significance both to cather and to twentieth century american modernists including shifting gender roles world war i s devastation of social and artistic norms and strains in racial relations she explores cather s links to a small group of modernists who after the war embraced life in new mexico a destination of choice for many artists and which led to two of cather s most fully realized modernist novels the professor s house and death comes for the archbishop the last chapter addresses cather s place within modernism stout first places her in relation to ezra pound and t s eliot with their shared ties to tradition even while making sometimes startling innovations in literary form then showing parallels with william faulkner with respect to economic disparity and social injustice

the scene is a darkened room which the curtain reveals so stealthily that if there was a mouse on the stage it is there still our object is to catch our two chief characters unawares they are darkness and light the room is so obscure as to be invisible but at the back of the obscurity are french windows through which is seen lob s garden bathed in moon shine the darkness and light which this room and garden represent are very still but we should feel that it is only the pause in which old enemies regard each other before they come to the grip the moonshine stealing about among the flowers to give them their last instructions has left a smile upon them but it is a smile with a menace in it for the dwellers in darkness what we expect to see next is the moonshine slowly pushing the windows open so that it may whisper to a confederate in the house whose name is lob but though we may be sure that this was about to happen it does not happen a stir among the dwellers in darkness prevents it ÿ in his first book a dockyard apprentice s story robert smith nige to his mates told of his formative years as a young trainee in chatham dockyard where he trained as an engine fitter and turner the technical progressman was set in the 1960s taking up the story from the point where bob transferred to the weapons section as a technical progressman now bob has added a third and final part about his post dockyard adventures working with the royal aircraft establishment rae and in posts with the mod and government agencies and published the whole story in one volume the full story of his career is packed with interesting
