how did we first come to believe in a correspondence between writers lives and their works when did the person of the author both as context and target of textual interpretation come to matter so much to the way we read this book traces the development of author centrism back to the scholarship of early renaissance humanists working against allegoresis and other traditions of non historicizing textual reception they discovered the power of engaging ancient works through the speculative reconstruction of writers personalities and artistic motives to trace the multi lingual and eventually cross cultural rise of reading for the author this book presents four case studies of resolutely experimental texts by and about writers of high ambition in their respective generations lorenzo valla on the forger of the donation of constantine erasmus on saint jerome the poet george gascoigne on himself and fulke greville on sir philip sidney an opening methodological chapter and exhortative conclusion frame these four studies with accounts of the central lexicon character intention ethos persona and the range of genre evidence that contemporaries used to discern and articulate authorial character and purpose constellated throughout with examples from the works of major contemporaries including john aubrey john hayward galileo machiavelli and shakespeare this volume resurrects a vibrant culture of biographism continuous with modern popular practice and yet radically more nuanced in its strategic reliance on the explanatory power of probabilism and historical conjecture the discursive middle ground now obscured from view by the post enlightenment binaries of truth and fiction history and story fact and fable demands for forgiveness even in the face of horrific crimes were common to the late twentieth century and remain critical aspirations for persons and communities in the early twenty first century research on forgiveness and revenge has nevertheless revealed that many people hold divergent moral and pragmatic beliefs about forgiving and most survivors express longstanding skepticism about when forgiveness is appropriate and when it is not by taking an interdisciplinary approach to these issues the current volume considers the complexities of forgiveness and revenge in the modern world the chapters address some of the most critical inquiries today how is forgiveness facilitated or obstructed what is the role of truth restitution reparation or retribution when is forgiveness without restitution appropriate is forgiveness in the true sense of the term even possible through empirical theoretical and literary analyses this volume addresses the power of revenge and forgiveness in human affairs and offers a unique outlook on the benefits of interdisciplinary discussions for enhancing forgiveness and deterring revenge in multiple aspects of human life
