in the holy spirit and christian experience simeon zahl presents a fresh vision for christian theology that foregrounds the relationship between theological ideas and the experiences of christians he argues that theology is always operating in a vibrant landscape of feeling and desiring and shows that contemporary theology has often operated in problematic isolation from these experiential dynamics he then argues that a theologically serious doctrine of the holy spirit not only authorizes but requires attention to christian experience against this background zahl outlines a new methodological approach to christian theology that attends to the emotional and experiential power of theological ideas this methodology draws on recent interdisciplinary work on affect and emotion which has shown that affects are powerful motivating realities that saturate all dimensions of human thinking and acting in the process zahl also explains why contemporary theology has often been ambivalent about subjective experience and demonstrates that current discourse about god s activity in the world is often artificially abstracted from experience and embodiment at the heart of the book zahl proposes a new account of the theology of grace from this experiential and pneumatological perspective focusing on the work of the holy spirit in salvation and sanctification he retrieves insights from augustine luther and philip melanchthon to present an affective and augustinian vision of salvation as a pedagogy of desire in articulating this vision zahl engages critically with recent emphasis on participation and theosis in christian soteriology and charts a new path forward for protestant theology in a landscape hitherto dominated by the theological visions of barth and aquinas

a theological study on the gospel of john that is strongly determined by contemporary biblical scholarship this volume examines the reasons that prompted the new testament writers to create the texts which would become the formation of the christian religion exploring the possibility that certain religious experiences were understood as revelatory and consequently inspired the writing of texts which were seen as special from their inception mark wreford uses luke acts and galatians as test cases within the new testament reflecting both on the stated importance of religious experiences whether the author s own or others to the development of these texts and the status the texts claim for themselves wreford suggests that luke acts offers a helpful example of the relationship between religious experience and the creation of scripture as an extensive narrative which reflects on early christian claims to spirit inspired witness and which begins with an explicit authorial statement of purpose similarly in galatians paul s autobiographical account of god s revelation of christ to him is the foundation of a letter that is intended to play an authoritative role in shaping its addressees own faith and practice wreford argues that religious experiences are presented as the driving force behind the creation of the texts examining how such religious experience links with notions of scripture and canonicity he then asserts that both luke and paul understood themselves to be creating new scriptural writings on the basis of their relationship to new religious experiences citing the experience and speech at pentecost the inclusion of gentiles in the experience and paul s own conversion experience as key elements behind the self understanding of these new testament authors the crucial books of galatians ephesians philippians and colossians are short but truly profound while providing a complete vision of christ they also give us the key to knowing and experiencing christ in a full way in the experience of christ in galatians ephesians philippians and colossians witness lee opens up the central revelation at the heart of the new testament by considering these books in the order of the believers experience colossians unveils the all inclusive christ who is everything to god and to the believers galatians shows that christ must be very subjective to us living in us and even being formed in us philippians gives us the secret of experiencing and partaking of christ lastly ephesians reveals that the issue the result of the experience of christ is the church book jacket offers a state of the art contribution by providing critical analyses of and creative insights to the nature of religious experience
