this book is for palliative care practitioners and all health care professionals with an interest in end of life care seven in ten americans over the age of age of sixty who require medical decisions in the final days of their life lack the capacity to make them for many of us our biggest life and death decisions literally will therefore be made by someone else they will decide whether we live or die between long life and quality of life whether we receive heroic interventions in our final hours and whether we die in a hospital or at home they will determine whether our wishes are honored and choose between fidelity to our interests and what is best for themselves or others yet despite their critical role we know remarkably little about how our loved ones decide for us speaking for the dying tells their story drawing on daily observations over more than two years in two intensive care units in a diverse urban hospital from bedsides hallways and conference rooms you will hear in their own words how physicians really talk to families and how they respond you will see how decision makers are selected the interventions they weigh in on the information they seek and evaluate the values and memories they draw on the criteria they weigh the outcomes they choose the conflicts they become embroiled in and the challenges they face observations also provide insight into why some decision makers authorize one aggressive intervention after the next while others do not even on behalf of patients with similar problems and prospects and they expose the limited role of advance directives in structuring the process decision makers follow or the outcomes that result research has consistently found that choosing life or death for another is one of the most difficult decisions anyone can face sometimes haunting families for decades this book shines a bright light on a role few of us will escape and offers steps that patients and loved ones health care providers lawyers and policymakers could undertake before it is too late dying churches seeking renewal have employed many internal symptomatic activities designed to attract new members and thus save the church from death such as new liturgy changing ministers enhanced coffee hours vbs handicap accessibility new outdoor signage etc through nine short one act plays this book centers on the interaction between a staunch conservative traditionalist ketchup bottle and one that is progressively adamant about renewal and being in mission for others as the latter leads the former in understanding the systemic problems facing the dying church such as doing the right thing for the wrong reason the motivation for mission a correct theological framework for a definition of church finding an authentic place for a pre scientific document the necessity of spirituality over religiosity a god centered definition of the church attitudinal change etc since these systemic problems prohibit the church from experiencing renewal and being in mission for others this book is a unique contribution to the genre of the dying church we all face death but how many of us are actually ready for it whether our own death or that of a loved one comes first how prepared are we spiritually or practically in preparing to die andrew holecek presents a wide array of resources to help the reader address this unfinished business part one shows how to prepare one s mind and how to help others before during and after death the author explains how spiritual preparation for death can completely transform our relationship to the end of life dissolving our fear and helping us to feel open and receptive to letting go in the dying process daily meditation practices the stages of dying and how to work with them and after death experiences are all detailed in ways that will be particularly helpful for those with an interest in tibetan buddhism and in tibetan approaches to conscious dying part two addresses the practical issues that surround death experts in grief hospice the funeral business and the medical and legal issues of death contribute chapters to prepare the reader for every practical concern including advance directives green funerals the signs of death warnings about the funeral industry the stages of grief and practical care for the dying part three contains heart advice from twenty of the best known tibetan buddhist masters now teaching in the west these brief interviews provide words of solace and wisdom to guide the dying and their caregivers during this challenging time preparing to die is for anyone interested in learning how to prepare for death from a buddhist perspective both spiritually and practically it is also for those who want to learn how to help someone else who is dying both during the time of illness and death as well as after death over the past century buddhism has come to be seen as a world religion exceeding christianity in longevity and according to many philosophical wisdom buddhism has also increasingly been described as strongly ethical devoted to nonviolence and dedicated to bringing an end to human suffering and because it places such a strong emphasis on rational analysis buddhism is considered more compatible with science than the other great religions as such buddhism has been embraced in the west both as an alternative religion and as an alternative to religion this volume provides a unique introduction to buddhism by examining categories essential for a nuanced understanding of its traditions each of the fifteen essays here shows students how a fundamental term from art to word illuminates the practice of buddhism both in traditional buddhist societies and in the realms of modernity apart from buddha the list of terms in this collection deliberately includes none that are intrinsic to the religion instead the contributors explore terms that are important for many fields and that invite interdisciplinary reflection through incisive discussions of topics ranging from practice power and pedagogy to ritual history sex and death the authors offer new directions for the understanding of buddhism taking constructive and sometimes polemical positions in an effort both to demonstrate the shortcomings of assumptions about the religion and the potential power of revisionary approaches following the tradition of critical terms for religious studies this volume is not only an invaluable resource for the classroom but one that belongs on the short list of essential books for anyone seriously interested in buddhism and asian religions
