hallucinations a natural phenomenon as old as mankind have a surprisingly wide range they appear under the most diversified conditions in the normal psyche as well as in severe chronic mental derangement as a symptom hallucinations are a potential part of a variety of pathological conditions in almost all kinds of psychotic behavior in addition lately various psychological and sociological circumstances seem to favor widespread use and abuse of hallucinogens substances able to produce hallucinations in the normal brain they not rarely lead to serious psychopathology such as toxic and mobilized or aggravated endogenous psychoses while such development adds to our scientific knowledge it also contributes to our current social troubles neurologists and neuro surgeons psychiatrists psychologists and other specialized researchers constantly have been dealing with the phenomenon its roots and branches and yet its primary mechanisms are largely unknown however investigators of hallucinations now seem to enter common ground on which meaningful discussions and joint approaches become feasible and more promising we have come a long way from the latin term hallucinari meaning to talk nonsense to be absent minded to the modern concept of hallucinations while the latin word was descriptive of what may be due to hallucinations the modern concept defines hallucinations as subjective experiences that are consequences of mental processes sometimes fulfilling a purpose in the individual's mental life in recent years what has come to be called the new mechanism has emerged as a framework for thinking about the philosophical assumptions underlying many areas of science especially in sciences such as biology neuroscience and psychology this book offers a fresh look at the role of mechanisms by situating novel analyses of central philosophical issues related to mechanisms within a rich historical perspective of the concept of mechanism as well as detailed case studies of biological mechanisms such as apoptosis it develops a new position methodological mechanism according to which mechanisms are to be viewed as causal pathways that are theoretically described and are underpinned by networks of difference making relations in contrast to metaphysically inflated accounts this study characterises mechanism as a concept in use in science that is deflationary and metaphysically neutral but still methodologically useful and central to scientific practice
