modernism in architecture and urban design has failed the american city this is the decisive conclusion that renowned public intellectual nathan glazer has drawn from two decades of writing and thinking about what this architectural movement will bequeath to future generations in from a cause to a style he proclaims his disappointment with modernism and its impact on the american city writing in the tradition of legendary american architectural critics lewis mumford and jane jacobs glazer contends that modernism this new urban form that signaled not just a radical revolution in style but a social ambition to enhance the conditions under which ordinary people lived has fallen short on all counts the articles and essays collected here some never published before all updated reflect his ideas on subjects ranging from the livable city and public housing to building design public memorials and the uses of public space glazer an undisputed giant among public intellectuals is perhaps best known for his writings on ethnicity and social policy where the unflinching honesty and independence of thought that he brought to bear on tough social questions has earned him respect from both the left and the right here he challenges us to face some difficult truths about the public places that for better or worse define who we are as a society from a cause to a style is an exhilarating and thought provoking book that raises important questions about modernist architecture and the larger social aims it was supposed to have addressed and those it has abandoned the heritage houses of the dawoodi bohra community at najampura in sidhpur gujarat have been a subject of many scholarly studies and documentations over the last several decades it is clearly evident from the design of at least half a dozen structures that their builders were familiar with the contemporary european architectural trends at the beginning of the twentieth century what is delightful about this development is that it occurred in a shy remote place like sidhpur far away from any global exposure and with no history of being a hub of trade or commerce what is to be commemorated are not these fountainhead european style buildings but their contribution in launching an absolutely unique vernacular language the local craftsmen to their supreme credit took inspiration from these models but never really imitated them for more and more systems software has moved from a peripheral to a central role replacing mechanical parts and hardware and giving the product a competitive edge consequences of this trend are an increase in the size of software systems the variability in software artifacts and the importance of software in achieving the system level properties software architecture provides the necessary abstractions for managing the resulting complexity we here introduce the third working ieee/flifip conference on software architecture wicsa3 that it is already the third such conference is in itself a clear indication that software architecture continues to be an important topic in industrial software development and in software engineering research however becoming an established field does not mean that software architecture provides less opportunity for innovation and new directions on the contrary one can identify a number of interesting trends within software architecture research the first trend is that the role of the software architecture in all phases of software development is more explicitly recognized whereas initially software architecture was primarily associated with the architecture design phase we now see that the software architecture is treated explicitly during development product derivation in software product lines at run time and during system evolution software architecture as an artifact has been decoupled from a particular lifecycle phase
