with a year of last things acclaimed novelist michael ondatje returns to poetry looking back on a life of displacement and discovery my life always stops for a new book by him jhumpa lahiri a generous moving book guardian born in sri lanka during the second world war ondatje was sent as a child to school in london and later moved to canada while he has lived there since these poems reflect the life of a writer traveller and watcher of the world describing himself as a mongrel someone born out of diverse cultures here rediscovering the influence of every border crossed he moves back and forth in time from a childhood in sri lanka to molière's chair during his last stage performance from icons in bulgarian churches to the californian coast and loved canadian rivers merging memory with the present looking back on a life of displacement and discovery love and loss as he writes in the opening poem reading the lines he loves he slips them into a pocket wishes to die with his clothes full of torn free stanzas and the telephone numbers of his children in far cities poetry where language is made to work hardest and burns with a gem like flame is what ondatje has returned to in this intimate history while much of the world remains in neurotic flight from death from the judgment that ineluctably follows it is vital to the vocation of the christian that he face unflinching the last things including that eternity of joy or woe awaiting every man born into this world how will we face the end on whom does our hope finally rest what are the very last things ever to be remembered these and other breath catching questions are examined in this book whose pages abound with insight and imagery drawn from the rich patrimony of the church's wisdom here is a fresh compendium of the thought of saints and sages as disparate as augustine aquinas dante newman hopkins eliot lewis james joyce and flannery o'connor who adorn the pages of this literary theological look at death judgment heaven hell here then is a complete canvassing of the last things whose understanding remains fixed on christ and his church thus awakening that sense of hope on which we depend in our journey home to god in the last things donald g bloesch takes up difficult and sometimes controversial themes such as the coming of the kingdom of god the return of jesus christ the life hereafter the millennial hope the final judgment hell heaven purgatory and paradise wrestling with biblical texts that often take metaphorical form bloesch avoids rationalistic reductionism as well as timid agnosticism while he acknowledges mystery and even paradox bloesch finds biblical revelation much more than sufficient to illuminate the central truths of a christian hope articulated throughout the history of the church the last things is not just a review of past christian eschatology but a fresh articulation of the grace and glory of god yet to be consummated the triumph of the grace of jesus christ and the dawning of hope beckon us to reach out in the power of the spirit to receive that blessed future and the promise to renew the life of the church universal today david emerton argues that dietrich bonhoeffer s ecclesial thought breaks open a necessary third way in ecclesiological description between the scylla of ethnographic ecclesiology and the charybdis of dogmatic ecclesiology building on a rigorous and provocative discussion of bonhoeffer s thought emerton establishes a programmatic theological grammar for any speech about the church emerton argues that bonhoeffer understands the church as a pneumatological and eschatological community in space and time and that his understanding is built on eschatological and pneumatological foundations these foundations in turn give rise to a unique methodological approach to ecclesiological description an approach that enables bonhoeffer to proffer a genuinely theological account of the church in which both divine and human agency are held together through an account of god the holy spirit emerton proposes that this approach is the perfect remedy for an endemic problem in contemporary accounts of the church that of attending either to the human empirical church community ethnographically or to the life of god dogmatically and to each problematically at the expense of the other this book will act as a clarion call towards genuinely theological ecclesiological speech which is allied to real ecclesial action it has ever been the practice of the catholic church to recommend to her spiritual children the meditation on man s four last things death judgment heaven and hell keeping these sobering aspects of human destiny ever before our eyes we will be that much less likely to fall into mortal sin and be lost eternally gives many facts we should meditate on as we contemplate death this book has converted numerous protestants in our day because of its cogent reasons for rectifying our lives
