this volume presents an overview of various aspects of the quite diverse philosophical developments that have taken place in ireland both past and present with contributions by some of the leading thinkers in their field this book is based although not exclusively so on papers given at a conference held at maynooth university ireland in 2012 to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the irish philosophical society rather than treating philosophy in ireland in a systematic and comprehensive way the contributions give the reader a glimpse of the state of philosophy in ireland today they show that from the beginning and throughout the centuries the philosophical tradition in ireland has been characterised by dialogue this dialogical aspect of irish philosophising remains alive today the book demonstrates how this engagement encompasses the past as interlocutor as well as interactions with the philosophical debates that take place outside of Ireland both on the continent and within the Anglo-American tradition. The volume puts forward a strong argument that the future of philosophy in Ireland should not move towards an ever greater specialisation thereby resulting in the isolation and impoverishment of individual philosophical traditions. Rather, it argues that the different traditions should remain and should engage in dialogue with each other with their philosophical and intellectual past and stay steadfastly connected with the society around them.

The Convocation records of the Churches of England and Ireland are the principal source of our information about the administration of those churches from middle ages until modern times. They contain the minutes of clergy synods, the legislation passed by them, tax assessments imposed by the king on the clergy, and accounts of the great debates about religious reformation. They also include records of heresy trials in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, many of them connected with the spread of Lollardy. However, they have never before been edited or published in full, and their publication as a complete set of documents provides a valuable resource for scholarship. This volume contains the texts of and evidence for all the Irish reforming synods from the twelfth century onwards, collated with parliamentary legislation from the same period. The peculiar nature of the Irish Convocation as it developed from the time of Edward I onwards is charted in detail and supplemented by what is known of contemporary provincial and diocesan synods. Much previously unpublished material taken from the Armagh registers from the surviving acts of the seventeenth century convocations and from a number of other scattered sources is also made available.
