in the early stages of planning the third international conference in system science in health care the steering committee members most of whom had participated in the first conference in paris 1976 and the second in montreal 1980 made some basic decisions about organization of subject matter the earlier meetings had been very successful in bringing together specialists from the health professions and the traditional sciences in addition to physicians and nurses these were representatives of the disciplines of the behavioral sciences system theory economics engineering and the emerging fields of management science and informatics all concerned with the development of health resources in a broad system context the reported research and experience of the many disciplines represented had dealt with one or more of three concerns 1 a major health problem such as cardiovascular disease or an important population at risk such as the elderly or children or workers 2 some generic aspect of organization and decision making including trial and evaluation of innovative health strategies and 3 the methodology of research and analysis in system of health service the challenge to the conference organizers lay in the eliciting and arranging of experiences in such a way that the health services could be seen as purposeful living evolving systems meditation is the result of departing from and returning to christianity it is about tasting again the salt of Jesus' teachings and rejoicing in imitating him in our eternal life which for us Christians begins down here on earth and will continue on in heaven the Catholic Church which I served as an altar boy from the age of 6 to the age of 18 made me a legalistic robot with little or no free will I was engulfed in guilt and despair that I will never amount to anything good spiritually one day I quit trying to become a good Catholic and went on a journey of discovery of other more attractive religions only to find along the way that Jesus is the way

The current drive in Caribbean literary studies stresses similarities and points of convergence between the various islands of the archipelago and their authors the fundamental aim of which is to move closer to an all-encompassing theory of Caribbean-ness Martin Munro challenges this movement and through a study of the work of Aimé Césaire and René Depestre proposes an alternative vision of the present and future of Caribbean literature the main areas of inquiry are how these two Caribbean writers construct their sense of themselves how they relate to the Caribbean and to the wider world and how they have been influenced by the historical and cultural particularities of their respective islands Aimé Césaire's sense of self and of the Caribbean is essentially shaped around the circuit triangulaire the model of Africa-Europe-Caribbean interdependencies ultimately inherited from the time of the slave trade Munro shows how Césaire views the Caribbean as a deeply traumatic insubstantial space how he looks to Africa for his lost sense of self and how Europe is seen at once as the malevolent colonial power and also the home of poetry and learning René Depestre's Caribbean shape is quite different Africa is relatively absent in Depestre's work Europe is not presented as a threat and Depestre unlike Césaire sees in the Caribbean an energy and a creativity brought about by the historical fusion of disparate cultures an important factor in shaping Depestre's model of Caribbean-ness is his long exile from Haiti and depestre's experience of exile is analysed in detail the combination of broad contextualization diverse theoretical approaches and close analysis of these important writers work produces a strong argument against attempts to view and read writing from the caribbean as one literature difference and diversity it is argued predominate as caribbean writing embraces the new century and the whole notion of caribbeanness undergoes further processes of highly creative splintering and reshaping
