the inauguration of robert maynard hutchins as the fifth president of the university of chicago in 1929 coincided with a drastically changed social and economic climate throughout the world and hutchins himself opened an era of tumultuous reform and debate within the university in the midst of the changes hutchins started and the intense feelings they stirred william h mcneill arrived at the university to pursue his education in hutchins university he tells what it was like to come of age as a undergraduate in those heady times hutchins scathing opposition to the departmentalization of learning and his resounding call for reforms in general education sparked controversy and fueled debate on campus and off it became a struggle for the heart and soul of higher education and mcneill as a student and then as an instructor was a participant his account of the university s history is laced with personal reminiscences encounters with influential fellow scholars such as richard mckeen r s crane and david daiches and details drawn from hutchins papers and other archives mcneill sketches the interplay of personalities with changing circumstances of the depression war and postwar eras but his central concern is with the institutional life of the university showing how student behavior staff and faculty activity and even the hyde park neighborhood all revolved around the charismatic figure of robert maynard hutchins shaped by him and in reaction against him successive transformations of the college and the tribulations of the ideal of general or liberal education are central to much of the story but the memoir also explores how the university was affected by such events as red scares the remarkably successful round table radio broadcasts the abolition of big time football and the inauguration of the nuclear age under the west stands of stagg field in 1942 in short hutchins university sketches an extraordinarily vibrant period for the university of chicago and for american higher education it will revive old controversies among veterans from those times and may provoke others to reflect anew about the proper role of higher education in american society what do the humanities have to offer in the twenty first century are there compelling reasons to go on teaching the liberal arts when the schools themselves have become battlefields does it make sense to go on writing when the world itself is overrun with books that no one reads in these simultaneously personal and erudite reflections on the future of higher education richard e miller moves from the headlines to the classroom focusing in on how teachers and students alike confront the existential challenge of making life meaningful in meditating on the violent events that now dominate our daily lives school shootings suicide bombings terrorist attacks contemporary warfare miller prompts a reconsideration of the role that institutions of higher education play in shaping our daily experiences and asks us to reimagine the humanities as centrally important to the maintenance of a compassionate secular society by concentrating on those moments when individuals and institutions meet and violence results writing at the end of the world provides the framework that students and teachers require to engage in the work of building a better future russell conwell s the collected works is a compilation of his various essays and speeches focusing on themes of success motivation and achieving one s full potential conwell s literary style is engaging and persuasive often using anecdotes and real life examples to drive home his points the book is a reflection of the late 19th century american spirit of self improvement and entrepreneurship making it a valuable historical document as well as a source of inspiration for contemporary readers conwell s emphasis on hard work perseverance and seizing opportunities resonates with readers seeking personal and professional growth his optimistic outlook and belief in the inherent potential of every individual make the collected works a timeless and relevant read for anyone looking to make the most of their talents concerned with the trendy technocratic and at times sophisticated character of contemporary education at all levels both public and private the authors of this collection seek to reinvigorate a thomistic approach to education appropriate to the problems of our day with its main inspiration taken from the work of jacques maritain especially his 1943 education at the crossroads the volume presents a trenchant critique of the privacies of contemporary education with its emphasis upon the conventional and useful at the same time the essays present the outlines of the proper alternative an education which helps students draw out from themselves the desire for truths which transcend the contingencies of culture and utility such an education seeks to guide students to the common things available to all human beings the essays uphold an account of man s intellectual and affective capacities which understands these capacities as naturally ordered to truth the essays approach the task in different but complementary ways in critiques of contemporary theories of education in speculative accounts of knowledge and learning in applications of theory to specific institutional settings and in discussions of the political contexts governing modern education in this rich variety of ways the essays in the common things not only point the way back to the crossroads maritain spoke of fifty years ago they go on to indicate something of the landscape along the road not taken by contemporary education about the editor daniel mcinerney is assistant professor of philosophy at the university of st thomas center for thomistic studies in houston texas the contributors in addition to the editor the contributors to the volume are benedict m ashley o p romanus cessario o p charles dechert donald demarco curtis l hancock gregory j kerr joseph w koterski s j robert lauder herbert i london robert j mclaughlin daniel mcinerney john m palms jerome meric pessagno ernest s pierucci alice ramos mario ramos reyes walter raubicheck peter a redpath gregory m reichberg james v schall s j francis slade michael w strasser and henk e s woldring praise for the book these essays are a considerable addition to thomistic thought about education review of metaphysics
