is the emerging digital multimedia culture of today transforming the textbook or forever displacing it as new media of transmission enter the classroom the traditional textbook is now caught up in a dialogue reshaping the textual boundaries of the book and with it the traditional modes of cognition and learning which are bound more to language than to visual form most of the important work in the past two decades in the field of curriculum has focused on the culture of the textbook a rich literature has evolved around textbooks as the traditional object of instructional activity this volume is an important contribution to this literature which focuses on the actual making of a textbook this design process serves as a metaphor that suggests new paradigms of learning and instruction in which text content is but one component in a multidimensional information space the visual turn is an exploration along the border of this new learning space transforming the traditional center of instruction in the classroom in the labors of modernism mary wilson analyzes the unrecognized role of domestic servants in the experimental forms and narratives of modernist fiction by virginia woolf gertrude stein nella larsen and jean rhys examining issues of class gender and race in a transatlantic modernist context wilson brings attention to the place where servants enter literature the threshold in tracking their movements across the architectural borders separating indoors and outdoors and across the physical doorways between rooms wilson illuminates the ways in which the servants who open doors symbolize larger social limits and exclusions as well as states of consciousness the relationship between female servants and their female employers is of particular importance in the work of female authors for whom the home and the novel are especially interconnected sites of authorization and domestication modernist fiction wilson shows uses domestic service to tame and interrogate not only issues of class but also the overlapping distinctions of racial and ethnic identities as woolf stein larsen and rhys use the novel to interrogate the limitations of gendered domestic ideologies they find they must deploy these same ideologies to manage the servant characters whose labor maintains the domestic spaces they find limiting thus the position of servants in these texts forces the reader to recognize servants not just as characters but as conditions for the production of literature and of the homes in which literature is created after the modernist literary experiments of her earlier work virginia woolf became increasingly concerned with overt social and political commentary in her later writings which are preoccupied with dissecting the links between patriarchy patriotism imperialism and war this book unravels the complex textual histories of the years 1937 three guineas 1938 and between the acts 1941 to expose the genesis and evolution of virginia woolf s late cultural criticism fusing a feminist historicist approach with the practices and principles of genetic criticism this innovative study scrutinizes a range of holograph typescript and proof documents within their historical context to uncover the writing and thinking processes that produced woolf s cultural analysis during 1931 1941 by demonstrating that woolf s late cultural criticism developed through her literary experimentalism as well as in response to contemporary social political and economic upheavals this book offers a fresh perspective on her emergence as a cultural commentator in her final decade and paves the way for further genetic enquiries in the field
