the world order as we know it is currently undergoing profound changes and in its wake so is foreign aid donors of foreign aid development assistance or development cooperation around the world are already facing new challenges in the changing development architecture this is an architecture that globally seems to become increasingly forgiving of foreign aid as a win win concept that also meets the donors own national interests something that has been an unofficial japanese trademark for many years this book examines japan s development assistance as it transitions away from official development assistance and towards development cooperation in this transition the strong and reciprocal relationships between japanese development policy and comprehensive security diplomacy foreign domestic and economic policies are likely to become even more consolidated and integrated the utilization of and changes within japanese development policy therefore affects not only recipients of foreign aid but also the relationships japan enjoys with its allies and strategic partners as well as the relations to competing donors and rivals in the region and around the world japanese foreign aid as such provides an extremely interesting case from where regional and even global changes can be understood written by a multidisciplinary team of contributors from the fields of political science international relations development economics public opinion and japan studies the book sets out to be innovative in capturing the essence of the changing patterns of development cooperation and more importantly japan s role in within it in an era of great change this book will be of great interest to students and scholars of japanese politics foreign policy and international relations

a survey of the economy of the pacific rim region offers insight into the chinese economy through the lens of the auto industry uses case studies to illustrate china s explosive growth over the last three decades and explores the strengths and weaknesses of the chinese economy pacific basin industries in distress between 1984 and 1994 thailand had the most rapid economic expansion in the world this 1998 book offers an explanation of this successful record of economic growth in thailand and in southeast asia more generally the book explains why thai leaders adopted a market driven strategy from the late 1950s and also shows how the overseas chinese in thailand built on their community s social capital to overcome the market failures common to all developing countries unger takes an interdisciplinary approach building on the literatures of social capital and embedded autonomy he considers the unique organization of thai society and the impact this has had on the country's institutions and their political and economic outcomes the book includes detailed analysis of the financial and textile sectors as well as the development of heavy industries and transportation infrastructure this book offers wide ranging insights into the organising capacities of workers in asia today nine case studies examine workers responses to class relations through independent unions non government organisations ngos and more disorganised struggles countering the notion that globalisation holds entirely negative consequences for labour organisation the authors reveal some of the openings for local activism which can arise from transnational production arrangements the volume covers the second tier industrializers china thailand malaysia the philippines indonesia india and bangladesh interdisciplinary in nature it will be of great interest to students and scholars of asian studies development studies and international labour studies business networks in east asian capitalisms enduring trends emerging patterns builds on the foundational studies conducted in the 1990s by gathering contemporary empirical and theoretical chapters which explore these themes in a comparative perspective the book includes contributions from authors working on the relationship between personal and business networks in countries including china singapore malaysia taiwan japan south korea vietnam laos cambodia and thailand authors emphasize enduring trends in social and business networks and or track new emerging patterns both within east asian nations or between east asia and other regions such as europe africa and the americas provides contemporary up to date empirical material and theoretical interpretation charting the influence of more recent globalizing trends and institutional change in the region includes studies of networks within prc between prc and other regions and in chinese communities offers studies centered on korean japanese and south east asian networks includes a geographical scope that will be broader than other books aiming to include studies of newly developing economies in south east asia that share a common cultural heritage e g vietnam this volume analyzes developments in east asian capitalism since the 1980s focusing on three main areas business systems financial structures and labor markets

the proliferation of regional institutions and initiatives in asia over the past decade is unmatched in any other region of the world the authors in this collection explore the distinctive features of these institutions by comparing them for the first time to the experience of other regions from the elaborate institution building of europe to the more modest regional projects of the americas it is an opportune moment for this reassessment as the european regional model faces a sovereign debt crisis while asian economies see more secure sources of growth from their immediate neighbors asia's regional institutions display a distinctive combination of decision rules commitment devices and membership practices shaped by underlying features of the region the dynamics of regional integration and the availability of institutional substitutes within this context the authors propose changes that will better sustain the prosperity and peace that have marked asia in recent decades drawing on case studies from the industrialization of east and southeast asian nations this text critically examines the structural adjustment policies used in africa since the 1980s the asian country studies include singapore malaysia taiwan south korea hong kong and meiji japan kuo contrasts the economic evolutions of taiwan and the philippines as the product of government and industry relations the two nations shared many economic similarities yet taiwan moved from clientelism to state corporatism while in the philippines clientelism remains deeply entrenched kuo's case studies in the textile plywood and electronics industries support these general arguments he finds that clientelism invariably leads to economic problems while a laissez faire approach is unpredictable the best formula for industrial success in a developing nation is close cooperation between business and government the startling revolutions of recent years have had as great an impact on northeast asia as on eastern europe gorbachev's cautious withdrawal of support for north korea and his establishment of ties with south korea have created a need for a new research agenda exploring how communism and capitalism in asia can be successfully restructured or redirected in a new world order focused on systemic issues this book is the first study to attempt a comprehensive analysis of social and economic development in modern korea as a whole as a homogeneous nation artificially divided by the competing ideologies of the cold war korea provides a unique laboratory for comparing divergent development processes undertaken by conflicting social systems current theories of third world development have advocated either capitalist models of modernization or have called for the establishment of self reliant socialist economies cut off from the world capitalist system while capitalist south korea has consistently outperformed communist north korea since the mid 1970s development has not yet brought a fully evolved west em style democracy in its wake self reliant north korea achieved successful growth during its first fifteen years but has since been faced with numerous structural limitations on sustained development including severe restrictions on political freedom and civil liberties in the author s view the experience of the two koreas suggests that the solution to underdevelopment must be based on the realization that exclusionary theories need modification in the light of special historical and sociological circumstances peculiar to individual nations this volume offers a valuable interpretation of modern korean history and constitutes an important contribution to the comparative study of capitalism and communism in practice it will be of particular interest to specialists in international relations and comparative political systems for many years japan was seen as the peculiar exception in asia a highly dynamic economy isolated in an otherwise moribund continent with the rise of the southeast asian and chinese economies however it has now become clear that asia as a whole is experiencing an extraordinary revolution which will result within a very few years in living standards for some countries being on a par with those in the west the results of this transformation can only be guessed at but the rise of asia adds a far greater sophistication to our understanding of how this process came about treating the key areas of asian life economics society and politics as an integrated whole and avoiding the trap of most commentators who see the phenomenon as an exclusively postwar economic issue balancing the uniquely asian aspects with global developmental factors dr tipton creates a convincing picture of how this amazing change has occurred drawing on a wide range of expertise this volume addresses fundamental issues surrounding industrialization in southeast asia which are particularly pressing now that the region s miracle has been transformed into a debacle and the world seeks to draw lessons from the experience the contributors address crucial questions such as how did southeast asia industrialize what have been the consequences of domination by foreign investment did the region s resource wealth weaken its imperative to industrialize why else has southeast asia s industrialization been inferior to the rest of the east asian region did the countries financial systems help industrialization was this industrialization sustainable the volume includes detailed studies of singapore malaysia thailand and indonesia this book the second of two volumes explores the transformations to the labour market observed since the official end of the cold war in 1991 this period is defined by the retreat of the state and a move towards more market based economies followed by a state comeback with the great recession these bumpy decades for labour and changing labour policies are analysed thematically the second volume focuses on labour earnings and inequality underemployment in decent work and labour market policies this book aims to examine how labour institutions both in developed and developing countries have responded to the challenges faced over the last 30 years it will be relevant to students and researchers interested in labour economics political economy and development economics a thoroughly revised and updated edition of the highly regarded 1993 book driven by growth this work presents the political economic evolution of the asia pacific countries with overviews of the impact of economic development on political change this new edition now includes chapters on burma and vietnam new authors have been added and all the original chapters have been revised trade unions and democracy explores the role of trade unions as products of and agents for democracy as civil society agents unions may promote democracy within the wider society especially in the case of authoritarian regimes or other rigid political systems by acting as watchdogs and protecting hard won democratic gains established democratic institutions in many advanced societies are facing new challenges the problem with using trade unions for this purpose is that they remain locked in a cycle of political marginalization and decline beyond this there are ironically serious questions about whether unions themselves internally function as democracies certainly there are tensions between rank and file membership and an authoritarian leadership with this infighting having possible effects on strategic deals or alliances and member accountability and actions on the other hand trade unions continue to represent a significant component of society within most industrialized countries and in many case they have a demonstrated capacity for working with other elements of civil society looking forward trade unions may be able to play a vital role in channeling and focusing spontaneous popular upsurges in the process they may revitalize themselves through use of greater internal democracy and become geared toward more diverse constituencies the question is will they fulfill this promise or continue to suffer from internal breakups and external breakdowns can trade unions save themselves and democracy or will both deteriorate in time trade unions and democracy brings together a distinguished panel of leading and emerging scholars in the field and provides a critical assessment of the current role of trade unions in society it explores their capacity to affect political policies to ensure greater accountability and fairness it also explores the nature of and extent to which internal representative democracy actually operates within trade unions themselves mark harcourt is a professor in the department of strategic management and leadership at waikato university in new zealand in a nation in waiting adam schwarz spans a wide variety of issues of concern in today s indonesia providing a detailed view of one of the world s most populous yet least understood nations he chronicles the major economic and political changes recorded during former president suharto s thirty one year tenure and the present economic and political crisis in this fully updated second edition schwarz analyzes the impact of suharto s resignation on the political economic and social life of indonesia
