includes also minutes of the proceedings and report of the president and council for the year separately published 1965 66 as its annual report technology is growing at an exponential rate vis vis humanity s ability to control it moreover the numerous ethical issues that technology raises are also troubling these statements however may be alarmist since telus would tell us the future is friendly the modernist vision of the future was utopic for instance star trek of the 1960s but postmodern views such as are found in blade runner 2049 are dystopic theology is in a unique interdisciplinary position to deal with the many issues pro and con that technology raises even theologians like origen in the third century and aquinas in the thirteenth century made forays into artificial intelligence and surrounding issues they just didn't know it at the time artificial intelligence ai and transhumanism raise questions about what it means to be human what is consciousness what is soul what are life and death can technology really save us and give us eternal life theology is in a unique position to handle these questions and issues this book also has practical applications in terms of ecclesiology church in the context of the covid 19 pandemic both in terms of what it means to be a church and in terms of the sacraments or ordinances is there such a thing as a virtual church or must we gather physically to constitute one are baptism and communion legitimate if one is not physically in a church building but are online this book struggles with these and many other questions which will help the scholar or reader make up their own minds however tentatively it is a truism in teaching choral conducting that the director should look like s/he wishes the choir to sound the conductor's physical demeanour has a direct effect on how the choir sings at a level that is largely unconscious and involuntary it is also a matter of simple observation that different choral traditions exhibit not only different styles of vocal production and delivery but also different gestural vocabularies which are shared not only between conductors within that tradition but also with the singers it is as possible to distinguish a gospel choir from a barbershop chorus or a cathedral choir by visual cues alone as it is simply by listening but how can these forms of physical communication be explained do they belong to a pre-cultural realm of primate social bonding or do they rely on the context and conventions of a particular choral culture is body language an inherent part of musical performance styles or does it come afterwards in response to music at a practical level to what extent can a practitioner from one tradition mandate an approach as good practice and to what extent can another refuse it on the grounds that we don't do it that way this book explores these questions at both theoretical and practical levels it examines textual and ethnographic sources and draws on theories from critical musicology and nonverbal communication studies to analyse them by comparing a variety of choral traditions it investigates the extent to which the connections between conductor demeanour and choral sound operate at a general level and in what ways they are constructed within a specific idiom its findings will be of interest both to those engaged in the study of music as a cultural practice and to practitioners involved in a choral conducting context that increasingly demands fluency in a variety of styles this book charts nineteenth century ceremonial and liturgical change through ritualists involvement of children in church of england services it draws on previously unresearched records of how children participated in services and considers the way in which their influence as adults subsequently shaped anglican liturgy theology and ecclesiology children were famously seen and not heard and as such are often found below the radar of studies of victorian anglicanism this volume sheds valuable light on the role that child choristers and ritualist children s hymnody played in the rapid growth of choral music in parish churches and provides evidence of children s influence on the early origins of the parish communion movement the book also examines the role which children s guilds and catechism services played in nineteenth century church of england mission and briefly reviews the legacy of ritualists sacramental mission found in current eucharistic mission services in the church in wales it will be of particular interest to scholars of church history liturgy ecclesiology theology and childhood the routledge companion to interdisciplinary studies in singing volume ii education examines the many methods and motivations for vocal pedagogy promoting singing not just as an art form arising from the musical instrument found within every individual but also as a means of communication with social psychological and didactic functions presenting research from myriad fields of study beyond music including psychology education sociology computer science linguistics physiology and neuroscience the contributors address singing in three parts learning to sing naturally formal teaching of singing using singing to teach in 2009 the social sciences and humanities research council of canada funded a seven year major collaborative research initiative known as advancing interdisciplinary research in singing airs together global researchers from a broad range of disciplines addressed three challenging questions how does singing develop in every human being how should singing be taught and used to teach how does singing impact wellbeing across three volumes the routledge companion to interdisciplinary studies in singing consolidates the findings of each of these three questions defining the current state of theory and research in the field volume ii education focuses on the second question and offers an invaluable resource for anyone who identifies as a singer wishes to become a singer works with singers or is interested in the application of singing for the purposes of education
