interpreting slavery with children and teens offers advice examples and replicable practices for the comprehensive development and implementation of slavery related school and family programs at museums and historic sites developing successful experiences school programs field trips family tours about slavery is more than just historical research and some hands on activities interpreting the history of slavery often requires offering students new historical narratives and helping them to navigate the emotions that arise when new narratives conflict with longstanding beliefs we must talk with young people about slavery and race as it is not enough to just talk to them or about the subject by engaging students in dialogue about slavery and race they bring their prior knowledge scaffold new knowledge and create their own relevance all while adults hear them and show respect for what they have to say the book s framework aims to move the field forward in its collective conversation about the interpretation of slavery with young audiences acknowledging the criticism of the past and acting in the present to develop inclusive interpretation of slavery when an organization commits to doing school and family programs on the topic of slavery it makes a promise to past and future generations to keep alive the memory of long silenced millions and to raise awareness of the racist legacies of slavery in our society today tolomato cemetery is the oldest remaining cemetery in st augustine florida it was founded in an era when the grim and grey church graveyard was the cultural norm in the north american colonies in an act of compassion for a group of unfortunate catholic refugees in british east florida the cemetery was established on the site of an abandoned franciscan mission where it remained active through the end of the 19th century after a century of neglect it now faces complex material conservation issues and a lack of public involvement in its care and interpretation it sits silently locked within its gates unable to share its own stories of st augustine s rich history this book explores how the site evolved over the centuries into its present state and what can be done to ensure its survival and return to a place of prominence among the cultural resources of one of america s oldest cities in reverence was written as a graduate thesis at cornell university in 2009 and has been revised for publication in 1949 construction of the planned town of nowa huta began on the outskirts of krakow poland its centerpiece the lenin steelworks promised a secure future for workers and their families by the 1980s however the rise of the solidarity movement and the ensuing shock therapy program of the early 1990s rapidly transitioned the country from socialism to a market based economy and like many industrial cities around the world nowa huta fell on hard times kinga pozniak shows how the remarkable political economic and social upheavals since the end of the second world war have profoundly shaped the historical memory of these events in the minds of the people who lived through them through extensive interviews she finds three distinct generationally based framings of the past those who built the town recall the might of local industry and plentiful jobs the following generation experienced the uprisings of the 1980s and remembers the repression and dysfunction of the socialist system and their resistance to it today's generation has no direct experience with either socialism or solidarity yet as residents of nowa huta they suffer the stigma of lower class stereotyping and marginalization from other poles pozniak examines the factors that lead to the rewriting of history and the formation of memory and the use of history to sustain current political and economic agendas she finds that despite attempts to create a single hegemonic vision of the past and a path for the future these discourses are always contested a dynamic that for the residents of nowa huta allows them to adapt as their personal experience tells them minnie and daisy's class is going on a field trip to the moushattan museum of history minnie is really excited because she loves art and history daisy thinks it's going to be a snoozefest when they get to the museum their history teacher announces that the students will be doing a scavenger hunt they have a list of questions to solve and the answers can be found in the museum's exhibits the first team to finish with correct answers will get extra credit toward their history grade the hunt is going fine until daisy suggests that she and minnie split up she thinks they can divide and conquer and she really wants to win because her history grade is suffering minnie sets off in search of a famous painting and daisy heads out to the bumblebeegypt room they are supposed to meet back at the lobby but when daisy doesn't show up minnie is worried is daisy lost will she get back in time and with the correct answer so they can win the scavenger hunt
